I teach grades 1-4 and use this curriculum. The kids are able to work independently which is very helpful in a multigrade classroom. I wish there was a placement test as I had 3 students this year begin in their grade level and then end up needing to go up a grade or two in these books. I make a photo copy of the take home word list, onto card stock and then cut out each list and laminate them for the kids. These lists are printed and in alphabetical order. This helps the students that have a harder time reading the cursive writing in the workbooks. I like this curriculum and will continue to use it for my classroom. It goes through grade 8, which allows me to use higher books for my advanced spellers.

These books are so great!!!! We used Level A and Level B last year. My child did really well with this. We started with Level A as we needed some remedial work (which was very successful). Each less starts with a short story (about a page) that is reading level appropriate--these range from informative to funny and are very engaging. Each lesson is organized around a phonics rule. The workbook portions are NOT busy work; they actually helped my child grow spelling and reasoning skills. Based on the two books we have used, this is the best system available.

Thus was a great tool for our homeschool curriculum. Great variety of words to study, had crosswords and little puzzles to do. We never got bored with this

I can't say I love this book. We prefer Spelling U See which is much more expensive but, in my opinion, worth it. Some of these lessons are way too hard for my kids and others are super easy.

The book includes instructional word lists. so much more is included here than the current mode of thematic word lists with rote memorization of spelling without regard to he rules of how we spell. It discusses how the word list relates and then offers ample time to practice. Assessments are provided at the end of units. Midway through this book, which is about the 2nd or 3rd grade, the handwriting models switch from manuscript to cursive. We purchased this as a mid-year change and started in the middle of the book. My daughter calls it goldfish spelling and enjoys our spelling time!

After purchasing another spelling program with way too much going on, I decided to give this book a try. I like that each lesson is relatively short. I like that it's just a simple approach to learning the rules of spelling. Some children may need to learn spelling in multi-sensory ways--this is not the book for them. But for a child who is able to learn by reading/writing, this book is a great choice.

This is a great resource for direct spelling instruction, giving the students 10 words per week to learn, with a number of accompanying exercises, such as reading passages and crossword puzzles. I thought the words would have been grouped phonetically a bit more, and would have preferred that, but otherwise it is okay.

I bought this for my 6th grader and I like the layout, however since they don't teach handwriting very much in school she has a hard time reading the words. I have bought a handwriting book that will help her learn handwriting with I think will help a ton.
