Chef Krystina Kalapothakos is an extremely passionate chef, a jack of all trades. Graduating from Le Cordon Bleu as a pastry chef, Krystina started noticing a growing desire for culinary cuisine in its entirety. Growing up in a Greek household, she quickly learned how to make traditional Greek recipes such as spanakopita at the age of seven.

Other than a concise, handy cookbook with quick, easy, authentic Mediterranean recipes that you'll keep reaching for again and again, and yet... again(!), Back To My Roots: Sharing Recipes

From The Villages Of Greece – is also the perfect embodiment of what it means to carry a passionate soul: chef Krystina Kalapothakos is truly committed to culinary arts and devoutly ardent about her Greek heritage. It only makes sense, that a product of so much love and hard work is nothing less than awesome!

My father in law made many of the recipes in this book. When I begged for directions, he just said a pinch of this, and a pinch of that. The recipes in this book are exactly what he made, but now I have the right proportions. Enjoyed reading about Greece, the value of olive oil and other tidbits of historical nature. A very heart warming book with delicious food. I'm Irish, but delighted to cook from this book.

Amazing, healthy and delicious recipes!

Wonderful recipes and stories. I have many recipes marked to try but not enough time to try them all! Chef Krystina is an amazing chef and really puts her heart into her craft.
