Customer Reviews

My nine year old LOVES this book!! He's gone through every choose-your-own-scenario at least twice! He can actually quote lines from the book. It's provided great conversation for us, and he asks lots of questions about the war. Just advanced notice... the reader is a character in the book (soldier, doctor, pilot, etc), and several of the scenarios that the reader chooses will end up with their character dead. It is definitely an accurate portrayal of what could happen during WWII. It was certainly fabulous to see a third grader so into a historical book that he couldn't put it down!

I have sent many of these interactive children's books to my grandson and he has enjoyed each one of them. The interactive keeps him involved in the story because each time you or he reads the book it changes because of the choices the the child makes at different stages through the story.

My son is a 6-year-old history buff, and he recently asked me about WW II. This book was a wonderful intro to him.

Great

My boys love these and recommend them to others. We now have a large collection and our library is also beginning to purchase them. I like the history in the books and the boys like being able to make (you choose) choices to complete the story paths.

My 10 yr old loves these books and he's not a big reading fan. These give him short reading, with different story endings. He loves learning history this way.

My third grade twins (boy and girl) love taking these books out of their school library and wanted their own copies. Very engaging and educational.

My son who is 9 and loves history, LOVES this book. he can't get enough of this series either.
