Catalogue Of The Printed Books On Agriculture: Published Between 1471 And 1840

Synopsis

Facsimile reprint of edition first printed in Aberdeen by the University Press around 1926.

Besterman 195 . Considered by many to be the founding fathers of agricultural sciences, in 1843, Sir John Lawes and Sir Henry Gilbert began a fifty-seven year partnership at the Rothamsted Experimental Station in England. Research based on classical crop growing experiments conducted there, at the oldest agricultural research station in the world, produced a wealth of new ideas and facts, established the principles of crop nutrition and laid the groundwork for the design of agricultural experiments. The Station had an extensive library of books relating to the history of Agriculture and in 1926, Mary Aslin, their librarian, compiled a catalogue of the collection. Containing descriptions for 5000 books printed between 1471, the year the first printed book on agriculture was published in Augsburg, and 1840, the end of the period when agriculture was based on empirical rules, this valuable catalogue is by far the most comprehensive bibliography on the subject cited in Besterman. Arranged alphabetically by author and by country, with English authors listed first. Also includes chronological lists of English authors and of the foreign authors by country. The original is a hard to find title. ii , 331+ 1 pages with 22 plates. cloth. 8vo..
